NEW YORK, May 23.—The Herald, which for weeks [illegible] of praising Conkling, to-day says: "It was [illegible] mistake in Conkling to resign as [illegible] was a slap in the face to his friends in the senate, but if he meant this resignation to show his intention to abandon his relations with corrupt party, he was right."

The Herald also says: "The republican party has [illegible] its mission. Why should it not [illegible]? Why should any one of its honest voters mourn over its disappearance? TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 24, 1881.

DAILY NEWSPAPERS.

A [illegible] has lately been received from the [illegible] which exhibits the status of the daily journalism of the country. These statistics are of quite unusual interest. From them we learn that the total number of daily journals in the country during the census year was 962. This number includes 80 dailies which were suspended and 111 which were established in the course of that year. The aggregate daily circulation is placed at 3,581,187 and the aggregate annual circulation at 1,137,337,350. With an aggregate daily circulation of 3,581,187 at an average price per annum of $7 [illegible], it appears the people of the United States pay out annually the sum of $26,250,100 for their daily newspapers. In the number of daily papers published New York leads with 115. Pennsylvania is next with 98, Illinois has 73, Ohio and California each 51, Missouri 42; Indiana 4[illegible]; Massachusetts 35; Michigan 33; Iowa and Texas 29 each; New Jersey, 27; Virginia and Wisconsin 21 each; Colorado, 20; Kansas, 19; Connecticut 17; Georgia 16; Maryland, Nevada and Nebraska 14 each; North Carolina, 13; Tennessee, 12; Kentucky, Louisiana and Maine, 1[illegible] each; Minnesota, 10; Arkansas and Oregon, 7 each; Alabama and Rhode Island, 6 each; Delaware, Mississippi, South Carolina and Vermont, 5 each; Florida and West Virginia, 3 each, and 11 in the territories and the District of Columbia. The [illegible] informs us that [illegible] the weekly press and of all periodicals other than daily or issues connected therewith, as well as some important information regarding the daily press, notably the amount of capital invested and the value of annual products, are reserved for a subsequent statement.

Except in new parts of the country the tendency is rather against multiplication of daily newspapers than towards an increase of their number. Established journals are making steady growth in excellence and circulation, and schemes of starting new journals in competition with them are constantly becoming more difficult. Their facilities for obtaining news and their resources for printing it are being steadily increased and multiplied, and the more they can expend for news and the larger their range of journalism the more they are sought and the larger their income. Thus expenditure of money and energy and the return therefor act and react on each other. The best papers are those which are able to give the most news and to cover most completely the great range of newspaper enterprise. The chief papers of the country long ago left all inferior competitors behind, and their only competition now is with each other. Frequently this competition is the source of remarkable achievements. An instance is the publication of the entire revised New Testament by the Tribune and Times of Chicago last Sunday, large part of which was telegraphed from New York. Daily journalism is constantly extending its field, and now takes in every department of intellectual activity. The daily paper is a better law journal than the professional law review; a better agricultural journal than the special agricultural paper; a better religious publication than any church or other religious organ; a better literary journal than any of the publications devoted exclusively to literary matters. It is all these in one, and has the daily news of the world besides. It will not be long till we shall publish a daily newspaper here which will surpass all the special weeklies in their own departments, if indeed we are not practically doing so already.

POLITICAL DUTY.

The organization known as the [illegible] republican league, which was started in Philadelphia as a means of opposing the third-term conspiracy, and which since extended its branches to many parts of the country, has determined to perpetuate its existence, standing squarely on the platform of the republican party agreed upon by the Chicago convention of 1880." The renewed struggle with "bossism," forced on the Garfield administration, has caused the league to take this resolution. The present and future purposes of the organization are, among others, to purify and elevate the republican party, to place the machinery of the party in the hands of men of superior character, to stimulate the moral sentiment of the people in behalf of political activity, and to elevate the civil service. It will, consequently, be seen that the league has laid out for itself plenty of work, and of a most excellent kind. The hardest task, however, which it has assigned itself is that of stimulating the moral sentiment of the people in behalf of political activity. It is quite safe to say that there is no political evil from which the country suffers which is not the direct outgrowth of the indifference of the people to their political duties. It seems utterly impossible to arouse them to active political exertion, except when some great crisis impends, or when the leaders draw the reins so hard as to make resistance an absolute necessity. The league itself would not have been organized had it not been for the great political excitement created by the conspiracy of certain of the stalwart bosses to force General Grant upon the country as president for the third time. The people were stirred to the most vigorous resistance by the persistency of the third-term clique. General Grant was not the popular choice for president, and his proposed candidacy was opposed because it was declared to be opposed to that wholesome unwritten law of the republic, which, by limiting the terms of any presidential incumbent, prevented any president retaining the office indefinitely, which, by the aid of the officeholding class, who control all the political machinery, it would be possible for an unscrupulous and ambitious man to do. The league did excellent service at Chicago by assisting in the defeat of the third-term scheme; and it is wise to continue its organization, yet it may be doubted whether it will be able to inject any sense of duty into the mind of the average American in connection with political affairs.

THE GERMAN EXODUS.

Every week brings its announcement of the arrival of emigrants from Europe in unprecedented numbers at our Atlantic ports. Germany sends a larger proportion than ever before. So remarkable is the exodus from that country that it attracts the attention of the German authorities; and even the consul general of Germany at the port of New York has been moved to write a letter in the effort to arrest the tide. He states to his countrymen that business in the United States is greatly depressed, that there is no demand for labor, that many of the German emigrants arriving in this country are in real distress, and there is promise of still worse times, and another great financial panic is evidently impending. This letter is published in all the newspapers of Germany; but it has had no perceptible effect beyond that of showing that a high official may so forget his proper character as to stoop to actual mendacity. The fact is there are hard times in Germany. Worse still, the country is never free from fear of war, and particularly of war with France. Germany must keep up her armies, and this necessity encroaches so much upon the citizen's individual life that he is glad to escape it when he possibly can. But while the consul general is [illegible] his countrymen not to come to the United States thousands of [illegible] here are writing back to their friends urging them to come hither, where no recruiting sergeant [illegible] them [illegible] and no tax-gatherer [illegible] the [illegible] of the fruits of their labor. [illegible] of M[illegible] has an immigration [illegible] the authorities [illegible] extraordinary exodus now taking place. During the first three months of the present year 2[illegible] persons left the [illegible] for the United States. [illegible] than [illegible] the same period [illegible] years [illegible] all [illegible] ... [illegible] citizens of its people. It is a fearful drain upon the resources of a country. [illegible] by thousands and tens of thousands of its wealth-producing citizens. The movement is a powerful protest against the arbitrary and [illegible] system of government which prevails in Germany, denying [illegible] military service, [illegible] them with taxes and pursuing them with a [illegible] from infancy to old age, from the cradle to the grave. Our country can receive no more desirable class of citizens than those who come from Germany. They are quiet, industrious, thrifty and enterprising, and natural supporters of our free schools and republican society. No other people assimilate so naturally with American institutions, or become so readily their steadfast defenders.

George Steel is circulating a petition asking immediate appointment by the president, notwithstanding the senate [illegible], for reasons which they may be [illegible] found sufficient, declined to report [illegible] for confirmation. Now is the time for [illegible] profit by perusal of [illegible] letter to Wilcox, to wit: "Of course you want the wording as well as the handwriting of each petition to be as different as possible." We are not aware, however, that there is any complaint about the present management of the Portland postoffice. The mails are forwarded, received and delivered with punctuality and dispatch; and if a professional office-hunter, who has abandoned all legitimate occupations and become the servile follower of a "boss" to work this field for all it is worth, should be kept out a few months longer it is not probable that any public interest would suffer. This, clearly, is a case in which the office does not seek the man. On the contrary, the man is after the office with the eagerness of the boy whose mother was "out of meat."

The Bradlaugh case in the British house of commons is rather an odd one. Bradlaugh is member-elect from Northampton. It is necessary for him to take the usual parliamentary oath before he can be admitted as a member. He is entirely willing to take the oath, and presents himself at frequent and pretty regular intervals at the bar of the house for the purpose of taking it, and as often as he does so is put out by the sergeant-at-arms. The trouble is that Bradlaugh is an atheist, and since it is not believed that the oath to be taken would have any weight on his conscience. However, it is a grave question whether his oath would not be as conscientiously observed as that of the other members. The sanctity of an oath is more in the spirit of the man who takes it than in the form in which it is phrased. There is apt to be a good deal of cant in these things.

Leland Stanford of the Central Pacific [illegible] asserts arrogant and extreme views as to the rights and powers of railroad corporations, including, of course, the right to [illegible] discriminate as they please. Mr. Stanford [illegible] better bestow some part of [illegible] wealth which the bounty of the country has bestowed on him than by [illegible] some [illegible] to induce him to hold his peace. No [illegible] apologists [illegible] against the arbitrary exactions of [illegible] corporations as Mr. Stanford himself.

[illegible] quite as much as to the [illegible] that they [illegible] hands they will fall into, and [illegible] well to be on good terms with both parties. Even when one of them is converted to Christianity he seems disposed not to neglect any of the chances. There was [illegible] of this sort in the interment of a Christianized Chinaman who was murdered in New York recently. His friends gave him two funerals—one according to Christian ceremonies and the other, at the grave, to the Celestial programme.

An effort is making to secure the coinage of more gold pieces of the largest denomination authorized by law. The mints recently have been coining eagles and half eagles almost exclusively. It is desired by those advocating the change in the coinage to have a greater number of double eagles coined. Secretary Windom has the matter fully under consideration, and has called upon the director of the mint for a statement of his views thereon.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 24, 1887.

CITY.

[illegible] Saturday evening the [illegible] of Mr. [illegible] Mathers, situated about eight miles northeast of Portland, took fire and was totally destroyed. About half past eight o'clock the entire family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Mathers and three daughters went into the backyard to [illegible] were, leaving the front door of the house open. A gust of wind [illegible] in the room and blowed some coals from the [illegible] place out on the floor. Before [illegible] aware of the danger, the [illegible] of the building was in flames. Nothing whatever was saved from the building. The fire leaves three people in very destitute circumstances. The eldest daughter is only 13 years of age and the youngest six years. They are a very deserving family and will need assistance from the good citizens of Portland.

[illegible] ALBANY.—The [illegible] this city and other points along the line of the [illegible] to Albany [illegible] promises to be a very pleasant [illegible] will be given under the [illegible] of Salem, and a [illegible] Parties from [illegible] [illegible] at Albany [illegible]

[illegible] DAY.—George Wright Post No. [illegible] respectfully solicit [illegible] Decoration day. Parties who [illegible] may leave the same [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] Sears, Mrs. Jos Wasy, Mrs. [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] Meroe, Mrs. W. C. Powers, Mrs. [illegible], Mrs. W. D. Palmer, Mrs. A. M. [illegible] commander N. S. [illegible] Monday morning, May 30th, [illegible]

[illegible] A [illegible] about [illegible] o'clock [illegible] ten-year-old boy living near the [illegible] saloon, [illegible] street was [illegible] with two companions in the woods back of North Portland gathering berries. While in a thicket they heard the whizzing of a bullet over their heads and [illegible]. A second bullet struck [illegible] inflicting a painful but not dangerous wound. The shots were fired by two boys, who ran rapidly away. [illegible] thinks the boys were firing at a target and did not intend to hit him.

SOLICITING ASSISTANCE.—Mr. John Late, is now in Portland soliciting assistance from the charitably disposed. He is a poor fisherman and has two little motherless children, both of whom are totally blind. He desires to send his children to San Francisco, where their eyes may be operated on by some skillful oculist, and for this purpose he asks assistance. He has a certificate signed by several of the leading citizens of Port Gamble, W. T., who state that he is deserving of charity.

A NOVEL UNDERTAKING.—Yesterday the new hull built by Jos. Pacquet for the Oregonian Railway Co., limited, was hauled alongside the steamer Ohio, and the latter's entire upperworks, including the boiler, were moved on the hull without "breaking bulk." The structure was placed on ways and pulled over by a windlass located on shore. The new steamer will be finished in about three weeks, and will be called the "City of Dundee."

ELECTION OF DIRECTORS.—At the last annual meeting of the stockholders of the Portland Mechanics' Fair Association the following gentlemen were elected directors to serve for the coming year: F. Dekum, D. P. Thompson, A. H. Morgan, Chas. Hodge, Wm. Honeyman, Geo. W. Weidler, W. M. Ladd, John Barrett, S. G. Skidmore, Wm. Kapus and A. T. Smith. The directors will elect officers at their next meeting, June 14th.

A RAPID TRIP.—Before the completion of the railroad from The Dalles to Walla Walla, it required from two to three days for passengers and mails to reach this city from the latter point. Now the through trip is made in less than 20 hours. Yesterday the boat reached Ainsworth [illegible] at 17 minutes to [illegible] through [illegible] passengers. The exact time of the passage was [illegible] hours.

TONIGHT'S CONCERT.—A slight change in the programme of Mr. Knopfli's concert at Taylor street Methodist church tonight will be made. Miss Hat[illegible] will [illegible] the place on the programme [illegible] Mr. [illegible] the organ, instead of Mr. [illegible], as first announced. Reserved seats are to be had at [illegible]

[illegible] to [illegible] from the [illegible] of Front [illegible] [illegible]

FROM [illegible].—Mr. A. W. McPherson, [illegible] arrived [illegible] days ago from San [illegible] the [illegible] of the Central [illegible] years. Mr. McPherson [illegible] future home, providing he can secure some suitable [illegible]

IN LIMBO AGAIN.—Wm. [illegible], who was here not long ago on a charge of selling [illegible] to Indians and fined in the United States court, was arrested Saturday on a similar charge and brought to the city yesterday in custody of Deputy U. S. Marshal Waters. He was examined before the U. S. commissioner yesterday and held to answer.

MORE PRISONERS.—In custody of Sheriff Birchtel, James McMillen, who has been sentenced by Judge [illegible] to the penitentiary for two years, was taken to Salem yesterday afternoon. Jackson, who was sentenced several days ago, for a period of three years, will be conveyed to the penitentiary today.

OVERLAND MAILS.—Stages of the California and Oregon line are still running under the winter schedule. The road is in good condition, but the horses on the southern division are suffering from epizootic. It is likely that the 52 hour schedule will be adopted by June 1st.

NEW FERRY.—Yesterday Messrs. Eaton and Ward inspected the new ferry, "Salem No. 3," at Salem, and issued a certificate. It will commence running in a few days. The Melo No. 2 will return to Vancouver and resume her place on the Columbia.

DEATH.—News was received here last night of the death of Mrs. Rol. Shattuck yesterday at Goss's landing, twenty miles below this city on Willamette slough. Mrs. Shattuck formerly lived in Portland and was well known here.

Y. P. A.—The regular meeting of the Young People's Association will be held this Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock, in the vestry of the Baptist church. Everybody is invited to [illegible]. Strangers are always made welcome.

[illegible].—The little steamer Oneatta has been changed [illegible] wheeler, has been lengthened and otherwise improved. She will be ready for service in a few days.

BROKEN SHAFT.—While towing a raft of logs in the lower Columbia a few days ago, the steamer Wonder broke her shaft. A new one is being made at the Willamette iron works.

POSTPONED.—On account of the extreme low water, the steamer A. A. McCully will not attempt the navigation of the upper Willamette as advertised.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

John Cran & Co. will receive by the incoming steamer white nun's veiling graduating dresses.

The attention of the public is called to the new livery and boarding stable which has just been completed on Second street between C and D. The accommodations are very complete, the stable having ample capacity to furnish lodgings for 160 horses. The very best turnouts can be obtained at this stable at reasonable prices.

The Farmers and Mechanics' store, east side of First street, between Yamhill and Taylor, come forward this morning with the announcement of their dry goods department. It was selected with special reference to Portland's trade by their eastern and California buyers, consists of the best goods obtainable, and is offered at lowest possible prices. A partial list of prices is given in their advertisement this morning, a perusal of which will be of interest to all purchasers of dry goods.

THE GRAND

Is the name of the new horse market, livery and boarding stable building just completed by E. M. Wilbur, three stories high, 50x200 feet, on the west side of Second and extending through to Third, between C and D streets. We find some of the finest turnouts of this [illegible] that can be seen anywhere, consisting of top rockaways, two seated side-bar open road wagons, open and top buggies of the very best, with horses and harness that [illegible] cannot be surpassed for style and beauty by any we have yet had the pleasure of seeing. We judge from the location and the unrivaled facilities for the transaction of business, that this will become a very [illegible] useful and favorite stable, both for parties having horses to board and those wishing to hire teams. James Armstrong is superintendent.

Mr. C. H. Prescott, comptroller of the O. R. & N. Co. returned yesterday from a short trip to Walla Walla.

Telephone [illegible] or order of the O. T. Co. when you or your family want a fine carriage for calling or riding.

Why ride in a shabby old carriage when you can ride in a nice new one for the same price at Ackre & Lelly's City Stables.

"Hubby dear, why so pensive?" And she murmured in his ear, otherwise a satire, "where are these candles from Stone's?"

MOLASSES PEPPERMINT CHEWING DROPS.—Molasses peppermint chewing drops, something new, manufactured at Ourner's Post Office Candy Store, opposite post office.

"Hello, Will, where did you get the new suit, and it is the latest out, too?" "Why, I got it from Buck & Waldman, dealers in men's and boys' clothing, First street, between Morrison and Alder. When you want anything in their line call round and see for yourself and be convinced. It makes no difference whether you want to buy or not, they will treat you cordially, just the same."

Have you heard the new Slaughtering millinery goods at the Postoffice Millinery Store. Sun hats from 5 cents up, large stock of boys' hats at cost; porcupine hats at [illegible] and everything in proportion. Yours truly, H. M. DEAL, The Milliner.

THE TABLES TURNED.

A Hackman Who Understands the Rules of Trade.

[From the Virginia (Nev.) Chronicle May 16.]

A communistic person [illegible] with the dangerous classes of the Comstock and notorious for his disregard of truth and contempt for vested rights, has just returned from a visit to San Francisco. This morning he endangered the good name of the Chronicle by entering its editorial rooms. The nihilist declared that he had "a good thing on Stanford and Steve Gage," but he supposed the Chronicle, like the rest of the corrupt and timeserving press, would be afraid to publish it.

"Tell your story," said the editor with dignity, and gazing inquiringly at the boot of the socialist, which was resting upon the editorial table. The boot remained there, however, while the following ridiculous narrative was delivered:

It's fine weather at the bay and everybody who can afford it takes a spin occasionally out of the dust and heat. Last Saturday Stanford and Gage were walking along Kearny street, and when they got to the corner of Bush the governor took off his hat, wiped his brow and remarked:

"Steve, it's too hot for anything. What do you say to a breath of fresh air?"

"Have we time?" inquired Mr. Gage, pulling out his watch. So did the governor, who replied:

"There isn't anything very pressing for a couple of hours, I guess, and we may as well take a spin out to the park. It isn't worth while to have out my horses. Let's take a hack, and then we can enjoy a walk when we get there. It'll be better than riding around the drives."

So they got into a coupe and were driven out to Golden Gate park. At the entrance the governor and Gage alighted.

"What's the fare?" asked the governor.

The driver, a retired prize-fighter, replied:

"Only $15, guv'nur."

"What!" yelled Stanford and Gage in the same breath.

"Fifteen dollars," repeated the cabby, unbuttoning his coat and spitting on his hands.

"But my good man," protested the governor, "such a charge is exorbitant. The law confines you to a certain price for your services and you can be arrested and punished for such a violation of the ordinance."

"Hang the law!" growled the cabby. "My money bought an' paid for this hack an' hosses, an' the essence of ownership is control."

"Hem!" coughed the governor, looking slyly at Steve, who began to grin. "That's all well enough when applied to my railroads, but—but—er—now if you charge us fifteen dollars to bring us to the park, what on earth would you charge us to take us to the Cliff house?"

"Five dollars."

"From here?"

"No; from the city."

"But it's twice the distance!"

"Yes, but it's a competitive point. Fifteen to the park, five to the Cliff. No hoggin' about it. Through rate to the Cliff, local rate back to park added—just as you fellers do when you charge $800 for drawing a carload of stuff from New York to 'Frisco, and make it $800 if you drop the car at Elko, about 500 miles nearer New York."

It was Steve's turn to cough and the governor's to grin.

"Well," said the governor with a sigh, "take us to the Cliff."

At the Cliff House the governor and Stephen drank their beer and smoked a cigar, and listened to the barking of the seals, and filled their lungs with the sea breeze. Suddenly Steve clapped himself on the leg and cried out:

"By Jove, governor! I forgot that lot of coal of Smith's that the sheriff is to sell at 3 o'clock. It's 2 now. If we miss that a chance to save at least a thousand dollars will be gone!"

"Good heavens!" cried the governor, snatching out his watch, "let's hurry back at once. Driver! Oh, driver!"

"Here, sir," answered cabby, who had been leaning over the balcony parapet within earshot, "here, sir."

"We want to return to town immediately," said Mr. Gage.

"Yes, I s'pose so," said cabby slowly chewing a straw, "but I'll take my pay in advance if it's all the same to you gents."

The governor growled something between his teeth and tendered $5.

"Taint enough," said cabby, contemptuously.

"In heaven's name, how far will your extortion go?" snorted the governor. "How much do you want?"

"Five hundred more," calmly replied the hackman.

"Hey?" shrieked Steve and the governor.

"Five hundred, an' not a cent less," repeated cabby.

"How dare—er—damme, sir! how do you dare ask such a price for driving two gentlemen four or five miles?" sputtered the governor.

"I bases my charge on what the traffic will bear," replied the hackman with a grin. "If taters is sellin' in Los Angeles for fifty cents a bushel and at $3 a bushel at Tucson you fellers charge the poor devil of a rancher $2.50 a bushel to pack his taters to Tucson and gobble all the profit. Now, I ain't so hoggish as that. I heerd Mr. Gage say if he could get into town by 3 o'clock he could make a thousand dollars. As there ain't no other hack here, I'm as good a monopoly for this wunst as any blasted railroad on earth; but ain't so greedy. I don't want all you can make by usin' my hack. I'm willin' to get along with half."

With a dismal groan the governor and Steve emptied their pockets and counted out the money.

"Now, see here," said cabby, as he closed the door of the hack on his victims, "I've done for wunst what you roosters do day in an' day out an' have been doin' for years an' made yer millions by it. I happen to be able to give you a small dose of yer own medicine for wunst, an' I don't want yer to do no kickin'. I know you kin send me to jail for runnin' my business on your principles, but if you jails me I'll have yer blood when I get out, an' don't yer forgit it."

Hereupon the hackman clapped the door to with a bang, and climbing to his seat drove at a rapid pace to the place where the sheriff was about to sell out poor Smith. Smith was a coal dealer who didn't have special rates.

When the nihilist had finished this absurd and libelous tale he took his foot off the editorial desk, laughed hoarsely and departed for the nearest saloon.

Our Antagonist Our Helper.

[From the Saturday Review.]

It is only second-rate men and short-sighted men who whisper to themselves that their path would be smoother if their rival was out of the way. On the contrary, it is easy to see that, to the few men who ever attain the first rank in politics, it is an indisputable gain that they should have to work in the face of an equal. They have necessarily to encounter opposition, and they know that the opposition of a first-rate opponent is never like that of a second-rate opponent. It has different qualities in itself, and it has this essential feature of difference—that it is made by a man of national eminence. A first-rate statesman is a statesman who has got a hold on the nation; and, if he opposes, he opposes with all the advantages of the hold that he has gained. To be able to gauge adequately the wishes of the nation is one of the primary duties of the leading adviser of the Crown, and he is aware that the wishes of a great rival are sure to be the wishes of at least a portion of the nation. It is not merely that his rival reflects the wishes of those who follow him, but that he, by his eminence, determines those wishes. To him it is given to create opinion, as well as to formulate it. There is a feeling widely spread, perfectly natural and perfectly legitimate, that what a man of real eminence thinks must have something in it. For the basis of the eminence of statesmen is the conviction they have inspired that they have a right to be eminent. And the test of eminence is that their loss, possible or actual, is spontaneously treated by every one as a national loss. They can say things and do things that other men cannot say and do, and the nation reflects with [illegible] forever without [illegible] The nation, too, is proud that it has produced such men, and has gradually worked out a state of things in which they have had an ample field of showing what is in them and of obtaining the recognition they deserve. On proper occasions this feeling triumphs in England over the littleness of party, or, rather, it may be said that the best party men have at such times nothing of the littleness or bitterness of party.

INDIGESTION.

The main cause of nervousness is indigestion, and that is caused by weakness of the stomach. No one can have sound nerves and good health without using Hop Bitters to strengthen the stomach, purify the blood, and keep the liver and kidneys active, to carry off all the poisonous and waste matter of the system.
